The Valorian Manifesto
Created by James Rezendes on December 7th, 2021

It is in the interest of all humanity that the system described in this writing is built and working properly. It should be universally agreed that as time and technology continue to advance, the potential of a certain form of heaven being created on earth is becoming increasingly more likely. A perfect world can be defined as one without any problems; where all living individuals are living the life best suited for them. The ultimate goal of this system, which is called Valoria, is to bring about this perfect world.

Valoria is an open, decentralized metaverse running on a collective network of devices and servers owned by the public. Every device, server, or node in the network will optimally give it's data storage and computational capabilities to distributively power the whole system. In return for increasing the network's scalability, the owner of the node will receive a token of appreciation from the protocol. This token, called Valor, is a cryptocurrency earned for the amount of work and value that one is giving to the whole network.

There must yet again be an upgrade to the means of keeping value. It is obvious that the US dollar or any fiat currency is worthless; belief in its value gives power to only a subset of people. It is also arguable that most cryptocurrencies and digital tokens of today are nearly worthless, besides the few that have a useful function outside of clout, memes, and trading. There are countless computers and machines running 24/7, requiring a large amount of electrical power to solve algorithms, only to increase the supply of a decentralized coin. It is laughable that with this many devices in a network, most of the transactions in these blockchain systems perform incredibly slow.

Value has to be based on the measurement of how good something is. The subjective concept of good shall only be appropriately defined by a decentralized protocol that is built to understand and calculate how valuable things are. Whether it's the metaverse, the simulation, or the AI singularity, when these spheres of technology start to leak into the real world, it is a matter of heaven or hell determined by the primary systems at hand. Let this novel community network be open source and used by all the people, and have it be established as an ever-improving gateway to a better world, for a better world awaits us all in Valoria!